

Learning Online

You may be surprised by the courses you can do online, and a lot of it is free! Visit www.eastmidlands.unison.org.uk/members to find out how UNISON can support your learning

Free courses provided by respected organisations. 100's of topics including business & management, literature, programming & much more. Courses are usually a few weeks long and a few hours a week.

www.futurelearn.com/

The home of free learning from the Open University. Courses, articles, videos, games and much more. Anybody can study with 900+ courses between 1-100 hours long.

www.open.edu/openlearn/

OpenLearn

Brilliant website with free courses for beginners. Helps you develop IT skills to make the most of the online world. You can learn how to use your device (computer, tablet etc), use the internet & set up an e-mail.

www.learnmyway.com/

Alison.com has over 1000 courses available. From Japanese to IT, Excel to Supporting Children with Special Educational Needs, and Basic English Grammar to Cellular physiology.

www.alison.com/

edX offers over 3000 free courses in 31 subject areas provided by some of the world's top institutions and delivered by instructors who are experts in their field

www.edx.org

Want to brush up your maths? National Numeracy is a site that allows you to test your levels and then, in your own time, go through the tools and resources to build up your skills

www.nationalnumeracy.org.uk

